

COLORADO

ALL HAIL VAIL

The celebrated snowy city of Vail has just introduced one of its newest and most luxurious residential developments to date: ONE WILLOW BRIDGE ROAD. With Old European architecture, the development establishes a charming village-like atmosphere that pairs cozily with real estate opportunities and endless amenities. (And the world-class skiing is just the beginning.) Scheduled to open this winter, Willow Bridge residences will offer the quality service and opulent amenities expected of from any high-end slopeside sanctuary. The full- and part-time options will include 10 three- and four-bedroom residences (starting at $3.6 million apiece) and 12 two- and three-bedroom fractional residences (starting at $480,000) that are available for a maximum of 52 days per year. (Hurry, though, as only a few remain up for grabs.) But while real estate opportunities will eventually sell out, the countless activities never will. Nature lovers can take advantage of 5,000 acres of white-capped terrain in winter and wonderful hiking and fishing in summer. Those who wish to stay indoors can relax and rejuvenate at the renowned Sonnenalp Resort of Vail. Meanwhile, entertainment buffs and collectors can get their kicks perusing the town's various fine arts venues and galleries. Vail Village also abounds with boutiques and dining, such as Sweet Basil (Colorado's 28-year-old dining darling) and The Golden Bear (every tourist's favorite place for one-of-a-kind finds). 970.477.5757, WWW.ONEWILLOWBRIDGEROAD.COM. —Melissa Wujick