

One Willow Bridge Road names sales director

DAILY STAFF REPORT

VAIL — Court Fable has been named director of sales for the company building Vail's One Willow Bridge Road luxury condominiums, said Robert M. McNichols, managing member of Phoenix-based Daedalus Real Estate Advisors LLC.

Gisela Seehafer and Suzanne Harren have been hired as sales associates for the development.

Currently under construction in the heart of Vail Village, the $100 million One Willow Bridge Road has 22 condominiums for sale, which can also be purchased as time shares.

Fable most recently was the sales manager for Maxim Integrated Products, where he ran a team of account managers and sales people in the western United States.

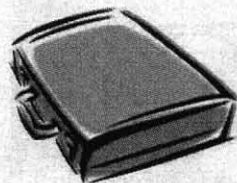

A graduate of the Boston College Wallace E. Carroll School of Management, Fable has a bachelor's degree in marketing.

"Court's proven sales skills and dedication to the Daedalus commitment to quality and service made him a natural choice for this position," McNichols said.

"He has already helped build an impressive sales and marketing team that will ensure our Vail luxury development is a success."

A native of Germany, Gisela Seehafer has worked in vacation-ownership sales in Colorado since 1997 with Starwood Vacation Ownership in Avon and Hilton Grand Vacation Club Resort in Breckenridge.

Suzanne Harren comes to One Willow Bridge Road from Vadoro Mountain Lodge in Breckenridge, where she was a senior broker. Prior to coming to Colorado, Harren worked in
